

Sustainability
at
Hypo Real Estate
Group

Sustainability is based on three components: economics, social issues and environmental protection. Sustainable management to Hypo Real Estate Group also means to move forward, unlocking creative potential.

Protecting natural resources is an essential part of economic growth and social welfare. As an internationally active company we are committed to our responsibility towards our customers, shareholders, staff as well as the environment and the community.

Our Code of Conduct and Ethics contains more information about our commitment to sustainability and environmental protection. Within the Group the executive management is responsible for environmental topics. The environmental protection officer in our Group Corporate Office is responsible for monitoring this topic, collecting ideas for a more active environmental protection within our company and communicating all relevant guidelines within the Group. Although there is no environmental report at this time, Hypo Real Estate Group is committed to minimize the usage of energy and raw material in all locations, by

- | Preferring office locations serviced by public transportation
- | Advising our suppliers to deliver recyclable office supplies
- | Introducing international guidelines for using recyclable supplies
- | Ask our employees to follow local rules of waste separation
- | Optimize our IT systems to achieve a paperless administration
- | Continuously develop further means for environmental protection
